Usability Test

After I made all the wireframes, I wanted to know if my design would work well for users. I decided to invite five of my friends to do a usability test. Three of them are big fans of stop-motion animation and want to create their own stop-motion animation video, the other three are interested in it but only watched one or two stop-motion animation movies. In order to do it in a simple way, I print out the wireframes that I create and show them to my friends.

Before the test, I explained to my friends about the purpose and the detail about this usability test. I also informed them that I will record the whole process. I ask them to think aloud no matter its right or wrong. Their opinion is very important to me.
